Learning

Description

Hi!

When a user is taking a course in the LMS and enters a module, he/she is not presented with the option to continue to the next module when the current module is complete.

This way, the user has to go back to the course overview and then click on the next module.

If it would be possible to create either a button where the user can click to continue to the next module or to have some kind of "timeline" somewhere, where they can see the current module they are on, the next module and then an option to continue to the next.

We believe this will create a better user experience for the end-user.
