Allow disabling rather than hiding buttons with no permissions

Description

Rather than simply hiding all buttons without permissions, it would make sense for a user to be able to view the button, but have it in a disabled state - basically the "disabled" attribute on normal html buttons.

If there is a group of, say, 12 buttons and a user only has permissions for 3 of them, the styling looks horrendous. As does the empty, uninformative box when a user has no permissions for any buttons.
