Auto save on Blog posts

Description
I just lost a great blog post. I have several windows open and I swear I clicked a different window to create image galleries, and when I went back to the blog post that I've been working on, to add a link to the gallery, it was gone. Just the title and image were saved. Is there an auto save feature that would save it into drafts so I don't have to start from scratch? Should I begin composing my blog posts in some Microsoft product that auto saves then paste into a blog?
