

How to Access the Design Panel

The Design panel allows administrators to customise the look of the Intranet.

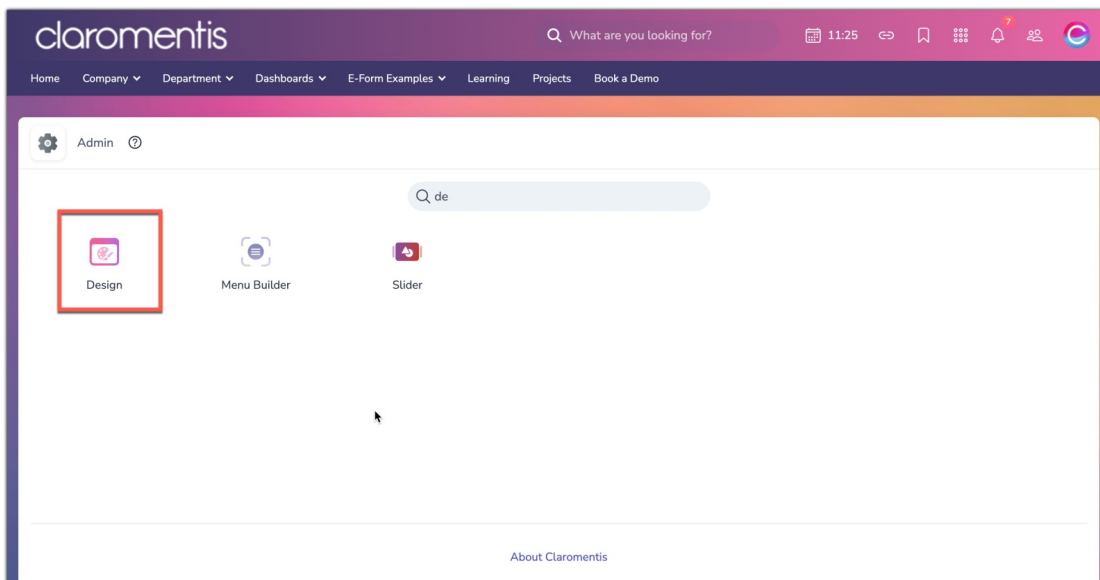

This area is important at site launch to ensure your organisation's logo, colour palette and overall branding are represented.

It is possible to create Themes with different colours and homepages if this suits your use case.

The Intranet management team must understand how to use the Design panel to make any changes to a site's style as required over time.

Where to find the Design Panel

Only application administrators of Design can access the design panel from Applications > Admin > Design:

Design panel explained

The landing page of the design panel has 3 main sections:

The screenshot shows the 'Admin > Design' interface. It features a sidebar with 'Design' (1), 'Login Page', and 'Utility' (3). The main content area is titled 'Design' (1) and includes 'Master Design Settings' with an 'Edit Master Design' button. Below this is the 'Themes' (2) section, which contains a table of themes and a '+ New theme' button.

1. The Master Design

The Master Design is the first style to be defined, including the logo, colours, menu, tab properties and homepage.

For more information, check out our guide on the Master Design.

2. Themes

Themes are different 'looks' of the Intranet that can serve different purposes (e.g. seasonal designs, different departments, suppliers, movie releases, holidays etc and users can be allowed to switch between them at will, or forced to see only one and not be able to change this).

For more information, check out our guide on Themes.

Any themes that have been created by administrators will be listed and edited.

The columns give an oversight of their settings for administrators to use for reference.

The homepage set for each, who can switch to it and if anyone is forced to see that theme only.

To learn more, check out our guide on How to Switch Themes.
